TURNING ROAD

(Fiction)

BLUEBEARD IN SHIRLEY HAZZARD’S THE TRANSIT OF VENUS

(Critical Accompaniment)

Tristan Stein

(Bachelor of Arts; Bachelor of Laws; Master of Arts Preliminary)

This thesis is presented for the degree of Research Masters with Training in English and Comparative Literature

(Murdoch University, April 2009)
I declare that this thesis is my own account of my research and contains as its main content work which has not previously been submitted for a degree at any tertiary education institution.

....................................................

(Tristan Stein)
ABSTRACT

This is a thesis comprising two components: a portion of my novella and a dissertation. My work of fiction, Turning Road, draws loosely on the Bluebeard fairytale, as well as theories of identity and nation, as a means of exploring a young Australian woman’s journey to London, a journey which is both symbolic and psychological.

The second component is the critical essay, which considers the extent to which Australian women’s expatriate fiction can be read as a variation of Bluebeard. Australian women’s expatriate fiction has been characterised as a journey involving a doomed love affair with a self-centred male in London.¹ To date, most critical attention on the genre has focussed on the extent to which it employs the Odyssean myth to consider gender and colonial identity. It is my contention that reading Bluebeard in The Transit of Venus highlights issues of identity and power in relation to gender and nation. Through its central themes of threat, sexuality, secrecy, self-knowledge and seriality, Bluebeard warns against prescribed gender roles/relations and limiting identifications, and works towards depicting a new liberating space between contrasting spaces identified as home and abroad.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ABSTRACT ................................................................. i

TABLE OF CONTENTS .................................................. ii

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS ................................................. iii

TURNING ROAD (NOVELLA)

INTRODUCTION ......................................................... iv

NOVELLA ............................................................... 1

BLUEBEARD IN SHIRLEY HAZZARD’S THE TRANSIT OF VENUS

(DISSertation)

INTRODUCTION .......................................................... 1

WOMEN’S EXPATRIATE FICTION—CRITICAL

INTERPRETATIONS .................................................... 2

BLUEBEARD—CRITICAL INTERPRETATIONS ..................... 10

BLUEBEARD IN THE TRANSIT OF VENUS ......................... 12

LACAN, GENDER AND NATIONAL IDENTITY .................... 29

TURNING ROAD .......................................................... 41

CONCLUSION ............................................................ 44

WORKS CITED ........................................................... 46

BIBLIOGRAPHY .......................................................... 49
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

My thanks to supervisors Deborah Robertson and Christine Owen for their expert guidance and valuable suggestions. For their encouragement and hands-on support, my thanks to Shaun McRobert, Sue Stein, Kira Tessler, Jana Stein, Ellen McRobert and Barry McRobert.