Editorial

Our inaugural Co-Editor-in-Chief, Lydden Polley stepped down at the end of June. The International Journal for Parasitology: Parasites and Wildlife was launched in 2012 and over the last five years we have shared the Editorship role. I would like to express my gratitude for the support Lydden has given to me and the journal during this time.

The journal's development and profile have benefitted greatly from Lydden's wealth of expertise in the field of wildlife parasitology, his international reputation, and the extensive links he has with scientists and researchers throughout the world.

The breadth and quality of the topics that are published in the journal, and the fact that our papers are representative of current international research, attest to Lydden's standing in the field.

Thankfully, Lydden's association with the journal will continue as he has generously agreed to join the Editorial Board as an Associate Editor.
