

LINKS FORGED WITH KOREAN UNIVERSITY

Murdoch University is establishing research and academic links with one of Korea's leading institutions—Yonsei University.

A senior member of Yonsei University, Professor Chang Hwan Kim, visited Murdoch this week for discussions on the inter-university relationship and to meet researchers in his field of chemistry.

At Left: Professor Kim discusses an experiment with (from left) Murdoch senior lecturer in chemistry Dr John Webb and post-graduate students Louise Evans and Mark Ellison.

Professor Kim, who is also Secretary-General of the Federation of Asian Chemical Societies, visited Murdoch under the auspices of the Commonwealth Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade and the Royal Australian Chemical Institute.

